Project Information

The Mobility Authority is considering improvements to US 290 between SH 130 and SH 95 South to increase mobility along a highly congested corridor.

Current congestion levels along US 290, just east of Austin, can add up to 17 minutes to an average trip for commuters. As the population in the fast-growing Austin metro area continues to increase, those delays will only get worse.

The Mobility Authority has begun an environmental study and schematic design that will evaluate the extension of the 290 Toll from its current end point near SH 130 in Travis County farther east to SH 95 South in Bastrop County, covering approximately 15 miles.

Project Goal: To improve mobility along US 290, a Top 100 Congested Road Segment in Texas.

Evaluating Potential Solutions

While the proposed improvements will be determined through this study, the initial considerations include:

- ▶ The addition of tolled mainlanes alongside existing non-tolled general-purpose lanes.
- ▶ Enhancing cross street intersections, including the possibility of new signals.
- ▶ Potential pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure enhancements where feasible.

The Environmental Study Process

The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) requires governmental agencies to assess the effects of a proposed project in advance to determine what impact the project may have on the human and natural environment. The Mobility Authority is committed to open and ongoing communication and will proactively engage with the community throughout this study process.

Protect Our Water, Protect Our Kids August Updates from the Mobility Authority

At the Mobility Authority, we're committed to protecting our environment and ensuring our roads are safe for everyone. This August, we're recognizing National Water Quality Month and reminding our community about Back-to-School safety.

National Water Quality Month

August is National Water Quality Month, a time to reflect on the value of clean water and renew our commitment to protecting it. While water covers more than 70% of Earth's surface, only about 3% is freshwater, and less than 1% is readily accessible for human use. Safeguarding water quality is essential for public health, sustainable development, and securing clean water for generations to come.

As part of our roadway projects, the Mobility Authority incorporates Best Management Practices (BMPs) to protect and improve water quality across Central Texas. These include:

- Stormwater treatment ponds that filter pollutants from roadway runoff before it reaches local streams.
- Temporary construction measures to keep harmful materials out of our waterways.
- Native vegetation plantings that help absorb rainwater, reduce erosion, and provide habitat for wildlife.

While we implement these protective measures in our projects, preserving water quality starts at home and in your neighborhood. Here are a few small actions you can take that make a big difference:

- Pick up after pets to prevent waste from washing into storm drains.
- Use fertilizer without phosphorus to avoid chemical runoff.
- Dispose of medications, paint, oil, antifreeze, trash, and other chemicals properly.

- Volunteer with a local creek or river cleanup event.

Clean water is a shared responsibility and every choice counts.

Learn More About Water Quality

Back-to-School Safety on the Roads

The majority of Texas students head back to school this August. With class back in session, it's more important than ever to stay alert on the roads. Here are key reminders:

- Slow down in school zones, watch for crossing guards, and obey posted speed limits.
- Yield to school buses, stop when their red lights are flashing and/or a stop arm is extended.
- Keep your eyes on the road and avoid distractions like your cell phone while driving.

Let's work together to ensure every student arrives safely to school and back home.

We Want to Hear from You

The Mobility Authority is considering improvements to US 290 between SH 130 and SH 95 South to increase mobility and safety along this highly congested corridor. The 290 Extension Project, an environmental study and schematic design, is officially underway. The project will evaluate the possible extension of the 290 Toll from its current end point near SH 130 in Travis County farther east to SH 95 South in Bastrop County, covering approximately 15 miles. The study will also evaluate non-tolled improvements to cross streets and bicycle and pedestrian facilities.

Join us at an upcoming Community Listening Session to share your input on the future of US 290. Your feedback can drive change.

Stay updated this September by learning about the latest developments in Central Texas mobility.

Texas "Move Over, Slow Down" Law Expansion

As you may know, Texas law requires drivers to move over or slow down when passing emergency responders, tow trucks, law enforcement, and utility vehicles stopped on the roadside. As of September 1, 2025, this protection now includes Animal Control vehicles and officers. Please do your part by staying alert for these vehicles and obeying the law by safely moving over to another lane or slowing down.

September 21–27 is Child Passenger Safety Week, with National Seat Check Saturday on September 27. These campaigns are dedicated to helping families keep children safe in cars, especially when using car seats.

Having trouble figuring out which car seat to use? Follow these guidelines for optimal safety:

- Starting at birth, always ride rear-facing until the child reaches height/weight limits allowed by the car seat manufacturer.
- When a child reaches the height/weight limits, they may ride in a forward-facing car seat with a harness and tether.
- When the child reaches the height/weight limits allowed by the forward-facing car seat manufacturer, they may use a booster seat.
- Children should use a booster until the seat belt fits properly. A proper fit for a seat belt means the lap belt is snug across the thighs, and a shoulder belt is across chest/shoulder.
- Always remember, no matter what seat you are using, installing in the back seats of the car is the safest option for all children.

Help keep all children safe by understanding these guidelines and doing research on the best and safest seat option. Always refer to your car seats guidelines for proper installation and limits.

MEDIA ALERT

290 Extension Project to Host Community Listening Sessions in Manor, Elgin, and Virtually

(Austin, Texas) – The Central Texas Regional Mobility Authority (Mobility Authority) is considering improvements to U.S. 290 between S.H. 130 and S.H. 95 South to increase mobility and safety along this highly congested corridor. The 290 Extension Project, an environmental study and schematic design, officially began earlier this spring.

Now, the Mobility Authority is inviting the public to share their input on the future of U.S. 290 in person and virtually.

“Hearing from the community that lives near and/or regularly drives the U.S. 290 corridor will be invaluable to us as we undergo this study process,” said James Bass, executive director of the Mobility Authority. “The feedback we gather at these listening sessions can, quite literally, drive change. The community can help to guide potential mobility solutions and design alternatives by making us aware of what is important to them,” Bass said.

The information and feedback opportunities at the in person and virtual listening sessions will be the same. The community is invited to attend the session that is most convenient for them:

About the 290 Extension Project

The Mobility Authority is conducting an environmental study and schematic design to evaluate the extension of the 290 Toll from its current end point near SH 130 in Travis County farther east to SH 95 South in Bastrop County, covering approximately 15 miles. While the proposed improvements will be determined through this study, the initial considerations include the addition of tolled mainlanes alongside the existing non-tolled US 290 general-purpose lanes. The project also anticipates improvements to key cross streets and potential pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure enhancements. Audit stall interrupts $20M bond vote

Bridge rehab delay and golf course debate flame budget talks

Edie Zuvanich
Special to the Courier

BASTROP — City Council postponed authorizing up to $20 million in Certificates of Obligation needed to restore Old Iron Bridge and fund quality of life projects until the city's 2024 audit is finished.

Banks require the final audit before issuing bonds, City Manager Sylvia Garrillo-Trevino told council members at the Aug. 26 meeting. She said the audit should be completed sometime this month.

"Our audit should have been done a lot earlier in the year," Garrillo-Trevino said, crediting staff changes in the finance department for the holdup.

Councilwoman Cynthia Meyer was quick to point out the delay is not something the community should worry about. She stressed this is not a sign the projects are in jeopardy.

"This delay does not mean it's not happening," Meyer said. "I know you're super excited about this stuff. This will

About half of the bond is earmarked for the historic Old Iron Bridge, which closed in 2018 due to safety concerns, according to city documents. Rehabilitation work — already underway with leftover funds from 2018 and 2023 bonds — is expected to

Austin looks below Bastrop County for water security

Niko Demetriou

As Central Texas braces for population growth and future droughts, Austin Water is looking underground in Bastrop County for a new way to secure its supply.

The utility has proposed an Aquifer Storage and Recovery project that would allow treated drinking water to be stored in the Carrizo-Wilcox Aquifer south of Paige, then pumped back out during drought or emergencies. Officials said the approach would protect Austin against water shortages and extreme weather while offering safeguards and benefits to area residents.

"This phase is about trust and transparency," Austin Water officials said in a release. "We're asking for three years to study water compatibility and show that we're good neighbors."

Field testing would involve collecting groundwater and core samples, then mixing them in a lab with Austin's treated water to check for chemical interactions. Based on results, engineers would design treatment processes for a small-scale pilot project.

Officials said no native groundwater would be

SAMSUNG-TESLA

for "a few rough quarters ahead" for the carmaker.

"We're in this weird transition period where we'll lose a lot of incentives in the U.S.," Musk said during a recent earnings call. "Once you get to autonomy at scale in the second half of next year, certainly by the end of next year, I would be surprised if Tesla's economics are not very compelling."

As detailed in a recent Tesla press release, federal tax credits for consumers are set to expire in September. The incentives called for a $7,500 credit off the purchase of eligible new vehicles, applicable to both cash and financing purchases.

According to multiple media reports, the credits were withdrawn following Musk's falling out with President Donald Trump.

The grim earnings outlook July 23 had a corrosive effect on both Tesla's market value and Musk's net worth.

"At the time, the warning knocked Tesla's share price down roughly 9% to 10% in a single day," Robinson said of Musk's July 24 earnings outlook. "For Musk personally, that translated into about a $12.6 billion paper loss from his net worth plus another $6 billion hit to his bonus-linked equity. So around $17.6 billion estimated in total."

The unexpected announcement on a Tesla-Samsung pact helped buoy those losses.

Musk's fortunes rose exponentially further in early August when the Tesla board awarded him 96 million shares of stock valued at $44 billion — the same amount he paid to buy Twitter in late 2022 — as outlined in a regulatory filing.

DEAL ANNOUNCED ONLY BUT NOT FILED WITH REGULATORS

The Courier reached out to the Securities and Exchange Commission to check if regulators have vetted the veracity of Musk's latest claims of a partnership with Samsung, but a spokesman declined comment.

The inquiry from the Courier was prompted given the lack of a formal SEC filing from Tesla alerting to the Samsung pact.

Typically, public companies file an SEC Form 8-K report in disclosing major, unscheduled events deemed important for investors.

Robinson confirmed no such filing was entered.

Samsung's parent company is Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd., part of the Samsung Group headquartered in South Korea.

"Samsung filed the deal as a material contract in South Korea, but it didn't name Tesla outright," Robinson wrote, noting that Musk later confirmed the deal on X.

He added, "it's not immediately known why Tesla didn't file a matching U.S. filing (i.e., SEC 8K) on this deal. It could be because U.S. and Korean materiality thresholds differ; its legal team may view the contract as ordinary-course business; the agreement may not be final from Tesla's perspective; and/or the company may be withholding information for a planned strategic announcement. Or some other rationale."

Musk has gotten into hot water with regulators in the past for making claims that never materialized but spiked share value.

In 2018, Musk tweeted he had "funding secured" to take Tesla private, causing the stock to soar in value.

As widely reported, the SEC that year charged Musk with securities fraud.

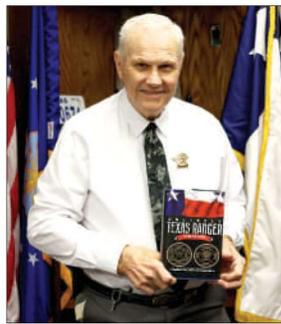

Regulators found the tweet messaging to be misleading as the deal was uncertain and Musk had not discussed terms of the plan with financing partners, according to reports at the time.

In addition, Musk faced a class-action lawsuit over the "funding secured" tweet that alleged fraudulent misrepresentation.

Time will tell if measurable gains in business activity will be seen in the region as a result of the Tesla-Samsung plant. But were the multibillion-dollar contract never to materialize, accountability would be elusive.

"Even in cases of executives making exaggerated or overly optimistic claims that look like financial/stock promotion, those rarely get prosecuted, as proving intent and direct harm is a high bar," Robinson said. "Even when they do, warnings, fines and settlements are the most common outcomes."

BOOK TALK WITH SHERIFF COOK

Bastrop County Sheriff Maurice Cook holds a copy of his memoir "Unlikely Texas Ranger: You Be the Judge" ahead of a Sept. 12 book talk at 11 a.m. at First National Bank in Bastrop. Cook, who marked 60 years in law enforcement last year, will share stories from his career and sign books at the free event, sponsored by the Baron de Bastrop Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. The 81-year-old lawman said he turned decades of experience into the true-crime volume, which recounts capital murder cases and the 1974 Huntsville Prison Siege. The book has earned international orders and strong reviews since its release.

* Always rest your bar soap on a sponge. You won't have a soap slime problem ever again, and the soap stays put. When the sponge starts to look questionable, you can replace it or just toss it in the wash with your towels.

ASMBLY Makerspace

Tom West, Guest Writer
 editor@manorjournal.com

A friend of Manor Journal's Publisher Dory West recently invited her to attend a ceramics demonstration at ASMBLY Makerspace. Returning home, Dory expressed amazement over the size and range of offerings at this facility, prompting a visit from myself.

Imagine having the ultimate workshop at your disposal where you have all the tools and workspace to spend time realizing a creative dream. Additionally, you have instruction available, and a friendly atmosphere of mutual support. Plus, you can access the secure space twenty-one hours a day. Good news! Just a few miles (fifteen minutes) from Manor is such a place waiting for you, the ASMBLY MakerSpace (asmby.org).

Located in their 13,000 square foot building are dedicated spaces for: Woodworking, Metalworking, Electronics, Laser Cutting, 3D Printing, Textiles, and Ceramics. Stocking these spaces is half a million dollars in tools and equipment ready to be used. Listing all the classes available would take most of this page, but a few are; Wood Turning, Metal Lathe, TIG and MIG welding, micro controller projects, sublimation printing, leather working, sewing techniques, iron forging, introduction to 3D printing, laser burning using CDC software, and ceramic techniques.

Becoming a member, with access to all areas (except Ceramics), begins at $95 per month. Ceramics access is $175 per month and includes dedicated shelf storage space, plus access to all other spaces as well. There are requirements to attend a safety class for each area to be used. A wide variety of classes are available, along with one-on-one mentoring (fees vary). There's even an entrepreneurs support group if you want to try producing for sale.

Its also worth noting that ASMBLY has developed comprehensive on-line resources for scheduling, on-line discussions, and a Wiki page bursting with member posted information. If you are interested in learning more about ASMBLY MakerSpace, start with their website then schedule and take a tour. And most importantly, let your imagination run wild and start creating.

Deportaciones paralizan la construcción en Texas

La industria de la construcción en Texas enfrenta una crisis laboral que amenaza con frenar el crecimiento económico del estado. Una encuesta nacional revela que el 92% de los contratistas reporta dificultades para atraer nuevos trabajadores, mientras que el 45% ha sufrido retrasos en sus proyectos. Esta situación coincide con el endurecimiento de las políticas migratorias impulsadas por el presidente Donald Trump desde enero de este año.

‘Juan in a Million’: 45 años sirviendo sabor y tradición en el este de Austin

Por 45 años, ‘Juan in a Million’ se ha consolidado como un icono del este de Austin, un restaurante familiar donde la buena comida y el ambiente cálido se combinan para atraer tanto a clientes antiguos como a nuevos visitantes. Detrás de este éxito está Juan Meza, quien comenzó su carrera como maestro en Austin junto a su esposa antes de descubrir su pasión por la gastronomía.

Meza asegura que el éxito se debe en gran parte a sus clientes, quienes han hecho del lugar un punto de encuentro entrañable. “Austin nos ha tratado bien, nuestros clientes también, y eso es una bendición”, afirmó. Además de sus platillos clásicos, Juan in a Million es famoso por ‘The Don Juan Taco Challenge’, un reto culinario que ha atraído a comensales competitivos dispuestos a devorar varios tacos llenos de papas, huevos y queso. Con su combinación de sabor, historia y desafíos culinarios, ‘Juan in a Million’ no solo celebra 45 años de trayectoria, sino que sigue siendo un referente de la cultura local y un lugar donde la familia, la comida y la comunidad se encuentran para crear memorias inolvidables. BB
